BEAR HEAD LAKE STATE PARK is located 18 miles east of Tower. Take U.S. Highway 169 east to St. Louis County Highway 128. Take 128 south six miles to the park. Highway map index: M-7.

Bear Head Lake State Park's 4,000-plus acres surround Bear Head Lake. The park also holds three other fishing lakes. Visitors enjoy boating, swimming, hiking, and fishing in this remote northern park.

WILDLIFE: The northern forest that surrounds 674 acre Bear Head Lake is home to a variety of wildlife. Visitors often see white-tailed deer, red squirrel, chipmunk, loon, bald eagle and red fox. Ocassionally, grey wolf and black bear are seen.

GEOLOGY: Volcanoes and ancient seas produced the bedrock of the Bear Head Lake area. The bedrock—of ely greenstone and giants range granite—was scoured and gouged by glaciers. Today, the area is covered with glacial debris—rock and dirt transported by glaciers from many other places.

Both Eagles Nest and Bear Head Lakes, along with the park's rolling hills, were formed from glacial action. At road cuts and along the lakes, visitors can see many different shapes and sizes of rock left by the glaciers.

HISTORY: Starting in 1895, logging was the major activity around Bear Head Lake. In 1907, the Allen and Whittenburg Company built a sawmill on the south side of the lake. The company logged the area for two seasons, then sold out. Next, the Tower Lumber Company purchased the mill. After two years, the company discontinued operations, dismantled the mill, and shipped it back to Tower.

Between 1911 and 1913 several fires swept the area. These fires consumed the forest inside the park boundary. Today, many old, charred pine stumps can still be seen along the park's hiking trails.

After the loggers left, little was recorded about the region's history. At one time a few backwoods cabins were built on the lake, but what the owners did or where they were from isn't known.

In 1961 the Minnesota legislature created the park.
